

The Legendary Sword

In the stories of the old and records of medieval times,
There once existed The Sword
So powerful,
The wielder could take on entire nations
Alone
The Sword picks it's wielder,
At random
If the wielder and The Sword do not strengthen their bond
The two action The sword takes Liberates their soul from their body,
Or
Disappears to seek another wielder
The Sword can sense the events to come,
So The Sword self destructed
Only one fragment remain
When the worthy wielder comes upon it
The Sword will become whole again

ABSTRACT

For this project, I wanted to make multiple variants of melee weapons. But, I arrived to the conclusion of making just a fragment of a sword, and create a narrative for it; it is loosely based on the Excalibur with a twist. Ironically, the blade design resembles more modern swords.

Also the ambiguity of having a single piece of the sword creates its own narrative for the audience; they are not limited to one story. At the same time, there's the base foundation of Excalibur reminding the audience.

